Local Farmer Says Support For Agriculture Strike Is Growing

With a farmers' strike moving into its second day, a Calloway County spokesman for a group called American Agriculture said today over 75 percent of the county's more than 300 farmers support the movement.

Glenn Crawford, a county farmer with the movement said, "We think we have the majority (of the county's farmers) sewed up."

An organizational meeting for the movement in Calloway County is set tonight, 7:30 o'clock in movement offices next to Purchase Equipment on East Main in Murray.

The organization, based in Springfield, Colo., has called on all farmers in the nation to stop selling their crops, and asks farmers to not buy anything other than necessities to protect the current rate of farm price.

Farmers with the movement are asking for 100 percent parity on all crops, enough money to guarantee what they call a "reasonable profit." Parity prices, determined by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, represent the relationship between what a farmer receives for his crops and what he must spend to produce them. Currently, all Kentucky crops are selling below parity. Nationwide the average is about 65 percent.

No pickets were evident in Calloway County during the first day, but in Graves County, Larry Smiley, who helped organize the strike in Graves and other Western Kentucky counties, said picket lines were set up Wednesday at area slaughter houses and dairies which did not close in sympathy with the farmers' movement.

Crawford said he expects the movement "to jell this time."

"We're going to ask grain operators to shut down. We want a peaceable movement," Crawford said. Crawford said about 300 farmers tend about 2,100 farms in Calloway County.

One grain operator in Murray said today that farmers had not contacted him about the strike. "But, I expect them to," he said.

One farmer said Hutson Chemical Company, which is in the fertilizer business and leases out Hutson Grain Terminal at the Port of Murray off KY 94, is sympathetic with the movement.

Speaking for the fertilizer aspect of Hutson Chemical, a company spokesman said the company "is sympathetic with the movement. 'We've been attending their meetings and had a vehicle in their parade,' a company spokesman said.

Murray's single livestock auction company is no longer in the livestock business, according to a company spokesman.

Smiley said more than 400 farmers attended a meeting in Mayfield Tuesday night, which was closed to the news media, to discuss strategy for the strike. Another meeting would be held in about a week, he said. A spokesman for the Mayfield Milling Co. said that business supported the farmers' movement, but "we're not closing down." The milling company is not buying new grain, but will continue to fulfill grain contracts already in effect.

The Bailey Grain Co. donated the space for an American Agriculture office in Mayfield, "so we're in pretty close touch with them," a company spokesman said. While the company did not buy any grain Wednesday, the spokesman said grain contracts would continue to be honored.

Both of Mayfield's stockyards made plans Wednesday to discontinue operations "until further notice," spokesmen said.

A spokesman at the Graves County Livestock Co. said the farmers "asked us to close and we did." He said he did not know how long the company would remain closed, but "we're going along with them."

A livestock auction was held Wednesday, with the agreement of striking farmers, at Farmers Livestock Co. in Mayfield. But a spokesman said, "We are closing tonight until further notice." She also said stockyards in several surrounding counties were closed Wednesday.

Some 500 trucks and tractors from Todd, Christian, Trigg and Hopkins counties paraded through Hopkinsville in support of the strike. Don Kennedy, one of the group's leaders, said the protest appears to be very effective.

Leaders of the movement are predicting strong participation, especially in grain-producing areas such as western Kentucky. Other farm leaders, however, have said it is virtually impossible to determine how many farmers will take part in the strike.

County's Prescription Drug Use Increases

Calloway County residents are using more drugs — prescription drugs, that is — than ever before.

As in other parts of the country, the consumption of these medicinal preparations, prescribed by doctors, has gone up considerably in recent years.

And, because of their increased use and the higher cost of prescriptions, the amount of money involved has risen sharply.

In Calloway County's regional area, on the basis of data just released by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the annual outlay for such drugs has reached $29.90 per capita.

This compares with an average of $17.50 per capita in the area in 1966, according to a study made then by the U. S. public Health Service.

It represents a rise of 71 percent in the period. Elsewhere in the United States, the bill for prescription drugs went up 81 percent, from $15.40 per capita to $27.84. This is exclusive of drugs dispensed to patients in hospitals.

Many Americans have help in paying their drug bills, it is pointed out. Some carry health insurance, which takes care of part of the bills. Others get some of their drugs free from their doctors. About 80 percent of the expense, however, is out-of-pocket.

In Calloway County's general area, it is shown, the average number of prescriptions filled per year is now approximately 6.5 per person and the average cost per prescription, $4.60.

Ten years ago, by way of comparison, there were 5.3 prescriptions per person at an average price of $3.30.

For the local population as a whole, it figures out to a total of 181,000 prescriptions per year. The annual cost is about $831,000.

As would be expected, the average out-of-pocket expense for drugs increases steadily with age. It ranges from $9.10 per year nationally, for persons under 17 years of age, to $61.40 for those aged 65 and over.

Females also spend much more for such medicines than males. Their average expenditure is $33.37 a year, as against $22.05 for males, according to the HEW findings.

ARTHRITIS DRIVE—Dortha Jones, right, Murray-Calloway County Overall Chairman for the annual drive for the Kentucky Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation this year, said a cashier's check for $1,846.37 has been mailed to the state chapter from funds collected from individuals and businesses in the city and county in the drive conducted here during October and November. Laura PPool, left, served as publicity chairman for the drive. Organizations cooperating in the arthritis fund drive were the Theta Department of the Murray Woman's Club, the Hazel Woman's Club, the Calloway County 4-H Clubs, and the Murray High and Calloway County High School Chapters of the Future Homemakers of America. Mrs. Jones expressed her appreciation to each one who helped in any way during the drive for the Arthritis Foundation.

Hubbard Survey Claims

Western Ky. Sentiment Is Against Treaty

Western Kentucky sentiment stands at nine to one against proposed ratification of Panama Canal treaties.

But, Western Kentucky respondents to a questionnaire from the office of U. S. Congressman Carroll Hubbard, D-Mayfield, are virtually split on two other questions, use of public funds for congressional campaigns and Saturday mail delivery.

Hubbard announced this week that responses to a questionnaire he sent out to First District constituents in September has now risen to 37,283.

Constituents were asked to register their views on nine key issues.

"The interest has been outstanding. The total number of opinions almost doubles the returns of my first poll in 1975," Hubbard said.

While questionnaire respondents strongly opposed a Panama Canal treaty, they favored, 79 percent to 21 percent, election of a president by direct popular vote instead of by the Electoral College.

Questionnaire respondents were about split on the question of using public funds for congressional campaigns. Some 51 percent opposed using public funds, while 49 percent favored.

The questionnaire had four options to the Social Security program. Sixty nine percent said "no" to raising Social Security tax rates; 31 percent responded "yes." Some 58 percent of the respondents supported an increase in the base of taxation, 42 percent didn't like the idea. Fifty nine percent of the respondents said they favored using Treasury Department funds for Social Security benefits, 41 percent answered in the negative.

Under the question of Social Security, 83 percent of respondents said they didn't favor raising retirement age at which benefit payments begin; some 17 percent said they favored the question.

The majority of respondents said they didn't favor a public employee guaranteed right to strike. Sixty five percent of respondents answered in the negative to the question, 35 percent supported it.

Response was close on the question of federal trade restrictions. Some 59 percent of respondents favored restrictions, 41 percent didn't.

On the question of elimination of Saturday mail deliveries to cut postal system costs, 58 percent of respondents said they favored such a move, while 42 percent said they were against it.

Hubbard asked if the U.S. should cut, increase or hold level defense spending. Half of the respondents said they favored holding the current level of defense spending; 40 percent said increase; 10 percent said cut defense spending.

Seventy percent of respondents to Hubbard's questionnaire said they didn't favor elimination of criminal penalties for possession of marijuana, 30 percent said they favored such a move.

Hubbard said most of the results from his questionnaire "held little surprise" and "strongly confirm what (he) has been hearing from constituents during regular visits to the district and from the many thousands who write the office each month."

Congress Moves Closer To Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders, with no hopes for an early break in the stalemate over energy legislation, are cleaning up other matters and adjourning the first session of the 95th Congress.

The path to adjournment was cleared Wednesday when agreement was reached on a Social Security financing bill designed to raise $227 billion over 10 years for the fiscally troubled system.

The measure had been held up in a dispute over one section providing a $250 income tax credit for college tuition.

Other matters on the agenda for today's session, the last until Jan. 19, were another attempt in the Senate to appropriate funds for the B-1 bomber and bills authorizing federal assistance for water pollution control projects and operation of the legal services program.

A major disappointment for President Carter and the Democratic congressional leadership was the failure to complete action on a comprehensive energy package.

Congressional negotiators on the energy package, after meeting with Carter Wednesday night, said they would continue holding sessions after adjournment.

But Carter and the leadership, including House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, point to a list of legislation they contend made the session one of the most productive in many years.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale told reporters earlier this week that "This has been one of the most successful congressional sessions in a long, long time."

Mondale conceded, however, that Carter may have hurt his prospects for congressional action by asking too much too early from the lawmakers.

"I would say, perhaps, looking in retrospect, the pace was a little too strong in the first year," Mondale said.

The end of the first half of the 95th Congress has no effect on matters still pending. Legislation pending before various Senate and House panels, including the energy package, remains intact.

The panel working on energy taxes has approved few provisions, delaying votes on Carter's proposed taxes on crude oil and on industrial use of oil and natural gas until a second committee decides how high natural gas prices should be allowed to rise.

The tax panel has approved a tax on cars that waste fuel, beginning with 1979 models. But the decision cannot be considered final until the non-tax committee determines whether to accept a Senate-passed ban on inefficient cars.

Non-tax conferees approved sharply toned down versions of three major parts of the Carter energy program. One would encourage utilities and industries to shift from scarce natural gas to coal; a second sets for the conservation of energy by home owners and industries, and a third establishes a set of conservation guidelines for states to consider in setting utility rates.

But the conferees deadlocked on the toughest portion of the energy package, the issue of whether to lift federal controls on natural gas prices.

MSU Department Head Disclaims Survey

Dr. Charles Homra, chairman, Department of Psychology at Murray State University, said today that a supposed telephone survey which has been reported in Murray is not authorized as a project in his department.

Dr. Homra said he learned of the supposed survey when "a couple" of Murray residents called him about it. Dr. Homra said questions on the survey dealt with clothing. The department chairman emphasized the Department of Psychology at MSU does not conduct telephone surveys and that the students who are representing the department with a survey are always identified and have the okay of local authorities.

A Murray Police Department spokesman said police have received no calls concerning the matter.

Should She Marry Man With Epilepsy?

DEAR ABBY: Last month I met a wonderful young man. He's 32 and I'm 29. We liked each other immediately and he asked to take me out. He said he couldn't drive a car because of the "medication" he was taking. I asked why he was on medication and he told me he had epilepsy. I was shocked because he looks so healthy. He explained that when he was a child he had been hit by a car and was in a coma for a week with head injuries. He said he takes pills to keep from blacking out, but he may get a seizure once or twice a year anyway, so he can't drive.

Now here's the unbelievable part. Two years ago I started going with a fellow who wore a bracelet stating he had epilepsy, only this fellow told me that he was born with it. He took three pills a day to keep from falling down.

I broke off with him because I was afraid if we married and had children they might inherit epilepsy. Also I wouldn't know what to do if he ever got sick in front of me. I never told him why I broke off with him because I didn't want to hurt him.

Now I find myself attracted to another man with the same problem. I can't believe it! Can epileptics marry and have children? How often do their "spells" occur, and how bad are they? What can a person do to help them? (I heard you have to hold their tongue so they won't swallow it.) Please explain these things to me, Abby. I can't ask anyone else.

NO NAME IN MICHIGAN

DEAR NO NAME: An estimated one out of every 100 Americans has epilepsy. It's the only common disorder of society than by his disability.

Although the tendency toward epilepsy can be inherited, it is not considered a hereditary disorder. In recent years medication and treatment have been very effective in controlling epilepsy. With proper care, most epileptics are able to live normal lives, marry and have healthy children.

Don't hesitate to ask the young man questions about his condition, and if your relationship becomes serious, you may want to speak with his doctor.

In the meantime, write to the Epilepsy Foundation of America, 1828 L. St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, who will refer you to your local chapter. They will provide you with free booklets telling you all you want to know about epilepsy but are afraid to ask.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was sentenced to three years in prison. We have two small children who love their Daddy very much. They are still too young to know what has happened, but I plan to take them and go back to live with my parents until my husband gets out of prison.

What should I tell my children when they ask where their father is?

TROUBLED IN TEXAS

DEAR TROUBLED: Tell them the truth in language that they will be able to understand. (If you don't, somebody else will.)

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Check that Spice Shelf

Disappointed the last time you added that subtle touch of herbs to your meat dish and found it too subtle? Then better check your spice shelf. Remember the flavor and aroma of spices and herbs does not last indefinitely. Rub a little of the spice or herb between your fingers, then sniff. If the aroma is faint, you might as well discard. To help preserve their freshness, keep herbs and spices tightly covered and store away from heat.

Observations

By Lochie Hart

Dog Tales

The Christmas Parade last week was a disappointment to Bruno, the St. Bernard who lives at the Landolts. He was invited by the Humane Society to ride in his yellow truck (He thinks it is his) inside the cab or on the truck bed.

He got all gussied up for the occasion by getting a shampoo at the beauty salon, and replacing his leash—one that he took off and hid. parade day came and found Bruno anxious to go with the yellow truck. Seeing the truck bed filled with people and pets thrilled him more.

Happily he climbed into the cab and took his seat. By seat, I mean that he actually sits in the seat of the truck. His seater is placed on the seat and his four legs rest on the floor. He is almost surrounded by his busy and fox-like tail. His head matches the height of the driver of the car.

What was his disappointment? The driver of the car had never driven one and refused to ride with the dog. In spite of the thrill of going and seeing the other pets on the bed, the children said they were afraid of him. So he was taken from the truck and led into the house. He ran to the front window and watched the Humane Society drive out the driveway into the street to join in the parade. He moaned and pouted until the truck was returned.

The Humane Society was judged third. We'll never know what Bruno thought of the results on the Christmas parade. He probably laughed inwardly and thought, "Had I been on the truck, we might have won first or second."

Injuries and embarrassments seemed to be right on Bruno's heels in the pastmonth. He is happy when he is on the yellow truck and George is with him. Last month he accompanied the men to Oaks Country Club where they were trimming the trees. He evidently did not recognize the road to be private, and started across it. He was hit by a car and suffered severe bruises but no broken bones. It was almost impossible for him to get up or down.

He was trying to get onto his feet when Gene Landolt tried to assist him. The pain was so severe that he yelped and snapped Gene's ear, a wound that required Dr. Hal Houston an hour to repair. The two nights that followed found Bruno standing in Gene's bedroom, looking at him and softly moaning, all night. We couldn't determine whether he felt guilty that his master was his victim or whether he felt that Gene was due an apology. Both Gene and Bruno are back to normal.

COOKIES MADE

When friends drop in during this most social of seasons, pull out cartons or trays of butter cookies baked well in advance. It's easy to freeze an assortment of cookies on foil covered cardboard to transfer to a pretty tray. Make certain the cardboard and cookies are overwrapped with foil and labeled as to content.

Second Thoughts Emerge On Bureau For Blind

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — There are second thoughts within the legislative branch about a 1976 act which created a state bureau for the blind.

A staff report of the Legislative Research Commission proposed Wednesday that the new bureau should be absorbed again by the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services.

Certain advocates of the blind succeeded in breaking away from the rehabilitation bureau and setting up their own agency during a lengthy struggle in the last legislative session.

The new bureau has been functioning since last July.

"It is costing almost $1 million more to provide approximately the same level of service formerly provided when the bureau was a division," the LRC staff told a subcommittee of the Interim Committee for Appropriations and Revenue.

"Much of the administrative cost is duplicative. . . no evidence has been produced as yet to suggest that services for the blind and visually impaired have improved since the bureau's creation."

In fact, according to Vinson Straub who wrote the critique, "a strong case can and should be made for dissolving the bureau and placing these services back within (the rehabilitation bureau)."

He recalled that proponents of the successfully 1976 legislation promised that the services could be provided at the same level with no cost increase.

The LRC study used the months of July through September for a test period. Straub said he failed to detect any improvement in services.

Unless there is such proof, he said, the LRC staff recommends repeal of the 1976 act.

The subcommittee also reviewed expenditures of the Department of Education and leaned toward a strict survey of what the agency accomplishes with its manpower.

"I think they ought to have to justify every employee they have," said House Minority Leader Harold DeMarcus, R-Stanford.

The department has more than 4,700 employees, including 3,200 involved in vocational education.

It currently receives $54 million and is seeking $58 million next year and $60 million the following year, the subcommittee said.

Members discussed the teacher salary question with the focus on Gov. Julian Carroll's pledge to raise average pay to a level of surrounding states by 1980.

The subcommittee concluded this could be done with a $92 million outlay in fiscal 1979-80, on the assumption teacher salaries would be increased by 25 per cent.

Rep. Carl Nett, D-Louisville, noted that per capita income is higher in most surrounding states than in Kentucky.

He wondered "if we should go with the Cadillac crowd" or settle for parity with southeastern states, which would mean less of a teacher pay increase.

The subcommittee's study of elementary and secondary education was in preparation for a two-day meeting of the parent committee, which began today in Spindletop Hall at Lexington.

Garrott's Galley

A Harrowing Experience With The Snow On I-57

To travel north this time of year is risky. Before you know it, Old Man Winter can grab you in an icy embrace and shake you until your teeth rattle. It's a wise man who recognizes this possibility. It's an even wiser one who prepares for such an eventuality.

Ray Moore knows this. Last week, Ray's colleagues in the Department of Instruction and Learning at Murray State laughed at him as he got ready to go to an educational meeting in Chicago. He had put a Coleman stove, a gallon of gasoline, a gallon of drinking water and a sleeping bag in the university car he was taking.

"They laughed at old Noah, too," he said later after one of the most harrowing experiences of his life, "but Chicago already had had snow several times this winter. You never know what to expect. I just wanted to be prepared to stick it out if I happened to get stranded."

Ray's destination was a three-day conference on behavioral science on the University of Chicago campus, and he had no trouble getting there despite ice on Interstate 57 from Effingham into the city. That was Wednesday, and that night it started snowing. By Thursday afternoon nine inches were on the ground.

Although it was hard to keep his mind on the conference proceedings thinking about having to get back south to Murray, Ray stuck with it until noon Friday, when he felt he needed to get started. "I had to get the car back," he said. "Vernon Shown had told me he wanted it in his driveway by 3 a.m. Sunday, because he had to leave then for a meeting in New Orleans. My big concern, frankly, was just being able to make it."

What Ray didn't know as he left Chicago was that 60 mph winds were whipping the snow into massive drifts on I-57. The interstate virtually was impassable at Kankakee, only a short run south of Chicago.

Eight miles out of Kankakee, a big semi-trailer truck passed him then suddenly jack-knifed. "I was absolutely blinded," Ray said. "The next thing I knew I was stalled in three feet of snow." This was about 2 a.m. Friday. Except for the raging wind and drifting snow, the day was sunny and clear, but bitter cold.

Shortly afterwards, a young man came by in a slow-moving but warm van, and Ray jumped in with him. They managed only three miles before having to stop. Everything was jammed up.

"Ahead of us were two girls who decided they would turn around and try to go back north again," Ray said, "and they left. The boy in the van had a CB radio and used it to ask ahead for folks to watch out for the girls. After a while, he decided we should go back north ourselves and check on them. We soon found their car. It had been abandoned. Apparently, someone had picked them up and taken them on north."

Making it back to his own car, Ray had to help push the boy's van to get it going again after getting out. That's when he learned what they really mean by "chill factor." It was 60 below. "I used to laugh at that," he said, "but never again. I got snow in my trouser legs, and it froze. I thought I was a goner."

"Just about the time my legs were getting numb, a snowplow, three state police cruisers and a wrecker showed up. The boy had located them for me on his CB and they pulled me out. I then followed the wrecker to Kankakee, where I managed to get one of the last rooms at the Holiday Inn."

The motel's lobby already was jammed with truckers and the parking lot of a nearby shopping center was a sea of trucks.

It was 3:30 p.m. Saturday before the road was opened enough to permit southbound traffic and Ray again headed for Murray, this time amid a convoy "of about 200 trucks crawling along on a sheet of ice." The real bottleneck, he said, was at Rantoul, where the worst drifts were. The snow had been bulldozed 15 feet high beside the road when he passed.

At Mt. Vernon, the ice became mush, and soon he was on clear pavement and streaking for Murray, arriving at midnight to park the car in Vernon's driveway three hours ahead of deadline.

"I learned several things from this experience," Ray said. "First, don't leave your car. I let them take me too far from mine. The CB's will watch out for you and will report it if you get in trouble. The police will get to you within a few hours and will get you towed out. It will cost you a towing fee, but it's worth it. Mine was $25."

"An ironic sidelight," he went on, "was when we were pushing the van and I was almost freezing to death. Just across the fence and racing over the fields on snow mobiles were a couple of boys, having a great time of it and completely oblivious of the trouble we were in on the highway."

As always, there was a humorous side. "In the lobby of the motel I overheard two elderly couples talking," he laughed. "One of the men was complaining about the delay in getting the road open when the other said, 'Well, if we have to gripe about it, it's good to be able to do it in here where it is warm.'"

Was attending the conference worth the experience? Ray had no comment on that.

Park Willing To Talk About

'Korean Connection'

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Indicted South Korean businessman Tongsun Park is willing to testify in court about alleged influence buying on Capitol Hill but is balking at a House committee appearance, his lawyer says.

William G. Hundley, Park's lawyer, confirmed Wednesday that his client has agreed to the Justice Department's offer to drop bribery and other charges against him in exchange for his court testimony.

Hundley said "only a few loose ends" must be tied down before a final agreement can be signed assuring Park's return to the United States, probably shortly after the first of the year.

"He is willing to come back and testify in certain trials if there are trials," the lawyer said, adding that the government might require Park to undergo a lie-detector test.

However, Park has not agreed to appear before the House ethics committee, which also is investigating the alleged South Korean scheme to buy influence with leading congressmen, Hundley said.

"I wouldn't exclude that possibility," Hundley said in a telephone interview. "But nothing has been worked out on it."

The lawyer added that if Park agreed to testify before the congressional committee, he might insist on a closed-door session.

Later Wednesday, Leon Jaworski, special counsel to the House ethics committee, said he would subpoena Park if the South Korean returned to the United States and refused to testify before the committee.

"We are not going to make any agreement that would permit him to testify in any criminal trial and also not be required to testify before the investigating body," the former Watergate prosecutor said.

"He will be subject to subpoena and we will subpoena him when he comes to this country," Jaworski said. "It would be improper for one department of government to hear his testimony and not another department."

Hundley said Park agreed to return to the United States because he feared his continued refusal might cause a rift in U.S.-South Korean relations.

President Carter and other administration officials have sharply criticized South Korea's government as being uncooperative in helping to bring Park back to the United States to testify.

After fleeing to South Korea last summer, Park was indicted in absentia by a federal grand jury here on 36 counts of conspiracy, mail fraud, bribery and failure to register as a foreign agent.

Testimony before the House ethics committee named Park as a key figure in an effort by the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency to influence congressional policies affecting the Seoul government.

SHOPLIFTERS BEWARE... You could spend the holidays in jail!

Jeff traded a record for a record.

When Jeff went into the store that Saturday, stealing an album was the farthest thing from his mind. But a dare from his two friends was too much to take. He wasn't chicken. Until a man stepped out from behind a two-way mirrored door. And brought him into his office. And called his parents. And the police.

He was brought to the station, and his record filed in the juvenile division. Unluckily, the juvenile court sent him to a community agency. Jeff paid the price.

A little pressure from his friends, and Jeff didn't have the guts to keep his hands to himself. Now he has free room & board. Such a steal.

Fact:

You can be arrested at any age.

A store official can stop, detain, and have you arrested if there is reasonable evidence that you have taken something.

Stealing is a crime whether the item is worth 5 cents or $500.

More and more specialized surveillance and detection equipment is being installed in stores.

Everything has a price. Shoplifting can cost you plenty.

"What Can Parents Do About It?"

1. Talk to the youngsters. Explain that shoplifting is a crime and that a criminal record is a lifelong shadow.
2. Emphasize that going along with the crowd for fear of being "chicken" is the coward's way out.
3. When youngsters go on group shopping expeditions, know how much money your son or daughter has, where the group is going, what they expect to buy.
4. If your son or daughter comes home with more merchandise than he or she had money to buy, ask about it. And don't take easy answers about where it came from. Sales slips are a good purchase.
5. Be wary if a daughter goes shopping with an overused purse. Purse are favorite "drips" for concealing pilfered goods.
6. Outlaw all clothes swapping unless the parents on both sides know what's being exchanged.
7. Practice what you preach.

SHOPLIFTING IS A CRIME

Take Easy 82-62 Win, End Four-Game Skid Muff, Wilson And Kelly Pace Racers

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Fred Overton had two rules Wednesday night for his Murray State basketball players.

First, Overton told his players before the game that they were to have fun while playing the game. Second, Overton told the players if they became tired, all they had to do was raise a hand and that would be a signal to the bench that they were taking themselves out of the game.

It worked, they worked and they resulted was a satisfying 82-62 win over Georgia College, thus snapping a four-game MSU losing skid and upping the season record to 3-4.

"It's the first time in the history of my coaching I've ever let my players remove themselves," Overton said.

"We must have had it happen 10 times in the game. Muff took himself out there once late in the game for a break and came back.

"I told the player who would go in that he might be in only for 30 seconds or so. I learned that from Dean Smith (North Carolina) but you have to have some understanding kids to do that," Overton added.

As far as Georgia College was concerned, Muff didn't take himself out of the game enough. Playing perhaps his finest game at Murray, Muff hit on 14 of 23 from the field and finished with 28 points in a sparkling performance. And, he played unselfish ball, several times passing up chances to fire up shots and electing to stick in the offense.

And speaking of offense, the Racers ran their plays and showed more patience than they did in any other game this season. They played good team ball and especially in the second half, looked like they were actually enjoying what they were doing.

It may have been the most disciplined-looking game the Racers have played in quite a while.

However, one thing can't be forgotten in the glory of the win; Georgia College left the Sports Arena with a 1-7 record.

"It doesn't matter how they have played or who they have played," Overton said of Georgia College. "If we do our thing, regardless of the opposition, we'll be okay."

But, there is another positive note to balance out the fact Georgia College is 1-7. They did lose by just about the same margin at Middle Tennessee and for the first half, just like in the Racers game, Georgia College trailed only by five points against the Blue Raiders.

Even yet, hanging over the win was the fact Overton had suspended three of his players...6-8 junior John Randall, 5-10 sophomore guard Lenny Barber and 6-1 junior guard Bobo Jackson. All were suspended indefinitely while Johnnie Thirkill and Jimmy Warren were benched for the first half last night and didn't play until the second half.

Overton started senior Glenn Jackson and freshman David Lowry at guards. Jackson, suffering with a case of flu, scored three points and Lowry had four. Raymond Sims, though he did not score, had a couple of good defensive plays and looked good when he was in the game.

However, the best impression had to come from 6-5 freshman forward Robert Kelly.

Kelly was simply marvelous. He popped in seven of 11 shots and many were from the 15-foot range. In addition, he grabbed six rebounds and played heads-up ball all over the court.

When he exited the game, he received a loud and well-deserved ovation from the fans, who seemed to appreciate the type of ball they saw from Kelly.

"Robert is a super shooter," Overton said. "He'll look inside and outside for the open man and does just the way you draw it up on the board," Overton added.

"It was really a pleasure to work with these kids tonight. It was fun. I think they had fun playing and I had fun coaching. With all the things that have happened, we needed one like this," Overton added.

Glenn Jackson's three-point play snapped a 4-4 tie and gave the Racers the lead for the rest of the game, though they never did pull away until the second half.

"I think what it was the fact that we had some kids out there that hadn't played since high school. We had three freshmen in the game at one time, Sims, Kelly, and Lowry," Overton said.

"I think they might have been a little tired for a while. But in the second half, in the first five or six minutes, we really looked good. It was really exciting in the last minute or so," Overton added.

Perhaps the most exciting thing came when Overton had six men on the floor. Danny Jarrett, who had 10 rebounds and four blocked shots when he was playing, decided he wanted to play a bit more. So when he was taken out, there was a bit of a mixup and Jarrett wasn't out. The Racers played and worked the ball around well and all the time, they had an open man somewhere, as the student section of the Sports Arena was howling in laughter.

Finally, and believe it or not the officials didn't even see it, Jarrett headed for the bench as Overton sneaked on the floor and assisted the big man off. By this time, the entire place was in laughter, including Jarrett, and it was almost a perfect ending.

However, there was more to come. Johnnie Thirkill brought the crowd to its feet with a beautiful slam-dunk but was called for a technical with four seconds left. That made it an 80-62 game but Georgia College missed the free throw and the Racers rebounded and got it down fast to Tom Leffler who knocked one in from 10 feet out at the buzzer. The team exploded on to the floor and everyone congratulated each other.

"We looked pretty good," Overton said, "especially when we had six men in there," he laughed.

"Then when we did get Jarrett out, Tom Leffler wanted to come out too. I just don't have any plays that will work with four people," Overton added, again drawing laughs from the crowd of boosters in the hospitality room.

Besides Muff and Kelly, also looking extremely tough was Skeeter Wilson who displayed a fine outside shooting touch, hitting seven of 12 for 15 points and grabbing down 10 rebounds.

Things will get much tougher Saturday when the Racers host a very talented Livingston State team.

"They could play with anyone in our conference," Overton said. "They are better than Samford and with the exception of Kansas and Indiana, far better than anybody we've played," Overton added.

The game with Livingston State will be the last one for December unless there are some plans made to play the Evansville Tournament.

FINGERTIP CONTROL — Raymond Sims, a former star at Murray High, saw quite a bit of action Wednesday night in the Racers win. Here, Sims goes in for a left-handed shot on a drive down the middle of the lane.

SUPER FUTURE — Robert Kelly showed the fans why he should have a super future at Murray State. Here, Kelly skies off the floor and shows his smooth shooting form as he hits from about 17 feet. Circling around to move into rebound position is Skeeter Wilson (42) of the Racers. Kelly hit for 14 points.

Believe It Or Not: Lakers Win Game With No Incidents

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The security force at the Summit could have handled a riot, but fortunately, all it had to do was watch the Los Angeles Lakers routinely beat the Houston Rockets 113-91.

Wednesday night's National Basketball Association Game had been viewed as a potential slugfest as a result of an incident in Los Angeles last Friday when the Lakers' Kermit Washington decked Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich with a punch so hard it fractured the Rocket forward's nose, jaw and skull and caused a concussion.

The riot never happened. Rockets officials pulled all stops to insure the Lakers' safety should any of the 13,549 fans decide to retaliate. A line of policemen spent the entire game behind the Laker bench; it looked like graduation night at the police academy.

The usual pre-game introduction of the starting lineup was omitted to prevent possible incidents involving the Lakers' starters.

Rockets officials took out advertisements in the local newspapers discouraging retaliation by fans. But if anything, the crowd was less enthusiastic than at other games.

"That's because their team was losing," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the object of many of the boos and signs that dotted the Summit. "I wasn't surprised that there were no incidents. I have faith in human nature."

Lakers Coach Jerry West did not share Abdul-Jabbar's calmness.

"I was apprehensive before the game," West said. "But the fans and the Houston organization are to be congratulated for their understanding of an unfortunate situation."

In other NBA games Wednesday night, the New Jersey Nets beat the Golden State Warriors 108-104, the Atlanta Hawks surprised the Philadelphia 76ers 108-99, the New York Knicks edged the Indiana Pacers 101-98, the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Detroit Pistons 102-92, the Kansas City Kings whipped the Denver Nuggets 124-98, the San Antonio Spurs stopped the Chicago Bulls 116-108 and the Phoenix Suns beat the Buffalo Braves 113-103.

INSIDE OR OUT — It didn't matter if Mike Muff (40) of the Racers was inside or out, he was superb. Muff goes in for two of his 28 here as 6-6 Wayne McCants defends and Robert Kelly (30) stands in rebound position.

Radford Keys Hoosiers By Second-Rated Irish

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
When the Indiana basketball team was in the dressing room at halftime, who was giving the Hoosiers an inspirational pep talk? Wayne Radford.

When the game was in the balance at the end, who was scoring the winning point? Wayne Radford.

When the Hoosiers had come off with a substantial 67-66 upset victory over second-ranked Notre Dame Wednesday night, whose name got top billing in Coach Bobby Knight's postgame news conference?

Why, Wayne Radford, of course.

"Radford is the first guy I want to talk about," said Knight. "And not just because he made the winning free throw, either. At halftime, he hadn't been in the game, and in our last game, he only played nine minutes. As I was coming to the dressing room, his was the voice I could really pick out encouraging the players for the second half.

"I don't think I've ever been prouder of a player. It was an incredible piece of leadership and I thought it was appropriate that he made the winning free throw. At the last time out, I told him that if I had a choice, he was the one I wanted there."

Radford entered the game with two minutes remaining and hit the winning free throw four seconds from the end to provide the Hoosiers with one of college basketball's biggest upsets this season. Radford's free throw, after he missed on the first chance of a two-shot foul, was his only point of the game.

In other games involving the ranked teams, No. 9 Nevada-Las Vegas trimmed Nevada-Reno 77-64; No. 12 Syracuse walloped American University 85-67; Alabama defeated No. 15 Michigan 78-63 and 19th-ranked Kansas State clobbered Arizona State 101-74.

Mike Woodson's 18 points and Ray Tolbert's 16 led Indiana. The Irish were paced by Bill Laimbeer and Dave Batton with 14 points apiece.

Reggie Theus scored 19 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead Nevada-Las Vegas over Nevada-Reno. The Rebels led at halftime 40-36 and were never headed after intermission.

The victory marked the 65th straight homecourt decision for the Rebels, tying Cincinnati for the longest streak in the nation.

Syracuse ran off 18 straight points early in the game behind Louis Orr and Ross Kindel and went on to an easy victory over American. Led by Orr and Kindel, who scored 15 points each, the Orangemen placed five men in double figures as they won their sixth game in a row and seventh of eight.

Reginald King scored 30 points and grabbed 12 rebounds and Anthony Murray had 12 points to help Alabama beat butter-fingered Michigan.

Forward Curtis Redding and guard Mike Evans combined for 68 points to lead Kansas State over Arizona State. Redding finished with 37 points while Evans had 31.

Elsewhere, Ohio State beat Cal Poly-Pomona 90-63 as Herb Williams scored 17 points and grabbed 10 rebounds; Massachusetts whipped Connecticut 74-64 behind Mark Haymore's 20 points; Stan Wright's layup and foul shot with one minute remaining gave Rhode Island a 66-64 victory over Manhattan and Bill Lombardi scored 17 points to pace Fordham to a 73-70 overtime victory over Brown.

Evansville May Try To Play Rest Of Schedule

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Watson, a Vietnam veteran who won five Purple Hearts with the Army's 101st Airborne Division, earned just one victory for Evansville's Purple Aces before the tragic air crash that killed him and all 14 of his players.

Exactly one week before Tuesday's flaming, metal-wrenching crash in the rain and dense fog near Evansville's Dress Regional Airport, the Aces beat Pittsburgh 90-83. It gave Watson, in his first season as Evansville basketball coach, his first — and only — major college victory.

"It was great, just great," the 34-year-old Watson said at that time. "There's nothing greater (than your first victory). I've been involved in a lot of wins, but few sweeter than that one."

A native of Bethel Park, Pa., Watson was head coach for two years at Ferrum Junior College, where his teams compiled a record of 61-8. He left Ferrum in 1973 to become associate coach at Wake Forest and then assistant coach at Oral Roberts University in 1974.

Evansville had just moved up to NCAA Division I status this year, but Watson was not the first choice to succeed the legendary Arad McCutchan, who retired after 31 years and five Division II national championships.

Jerry Sloan, a former star with Evansville and the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, originally accepted the job but backed out shortly afterward.

So Watson took over and began the difficult task of transforming the perennial small college power into a major contender.

The Aces were 1-3, losing to Western Kentucky, DePaul and, last Saturday, to seventh-ranked Indiana State, a traditional rival.

Watson's rebuilding project lasted 279 days, but people were impressed with the things he accomplished.

"He did a marvelous job in such a short time," said McCutchan. "He got it going in a way it had to. It's horrible what happened."

Watson was a basketball and baseball star in high school. He accepted a basketball scholarship to Virginia Military Institute and helped the 1964 team win The Southern Conference championship and a trip to the NCAA tournament.

Watson entered the army in 1965 and during two tours in Vietnam he was awarded the Bronze Star and the Army Commendation Medal in addition to five Purple Hearts.

"He was a battler," said Juanita Mullins, a university athletic department employee. "I know what he would like us to do now, he'd want us to go on playing. Somehow we'll have to put this program together again, but right now I'm kind of numb."

School officials still were not sure if the school would complete their season schedule. "We might try to do it with a pick-up team," said Mark Sandy, an assistant coach who stayed behind to take a scouting trip to Southern Illinois University. "Right now we just don't know."

Watson and his wife, Deidra, would have celebrated their wedding anniversary on Wednesday. They had three daughters, Angela, 11, and 2-year-old twins, Leigh and Chadra.

Finley Sells His Team, A's To Move To Denver

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Two shrewd business magnates — enjoying the maneuvering and haggling that goes with high finance transactions — have apparently settled the future of the Oakland A's.

Oil millionaire Marvin Davis and insurance millionaire Charles O. Finley agreed Wednesday to bring the once proud, now down-trodden American League club to Denver for the 1978 season.

"It was a lot of fun," Davis said of his negotiations with Finley.

"Finley, like myself, is a businessman. He was hoping to get the price he wanted for the team. He had other bids, but he liked our deal the best." Davis did not reveal the purchase price, but commented, "In the end, it was the dollar that made the difference."

In Chicago, Finley praised Davis for his decisive action.

"Mr. Davis put the money on the line," Finley said, also refusing to disclose the exact price.

"Mr. Davis is not like a lot of Texans — big hat, no cattle. That man's got the cattle. Horse manure walks, money talks. All these other people were walking around with their hands in their pockets. Mr. Davis took his hands out of his pockets and put the money on the table."

At his news conference, Davis warned, "We have many bridges to cross before this thing is finalized."

He said any litigation over the contract the team has with Oakland Coliseum must be settled by Finley. And he wasn't overly concerned about the trade of pitcher Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds of the National League. Finley made that transaction for $1.75 million and a minor league player.

Blue will not be coming to Denver unless Commissioner Bowie Kuhn disapproves that deal, Davis said. Kuhn, who blocked a previous sale of Blue, Rolfe Fingers and Joe Rudi by Finley 1½ years ago, has called a hearing for next Tuesday to explore the matter.

Finley said his run-ins with Kuhn had spoiled baseball for him and he blamed the commissioner for forcing him to unload his club.

"My having to get out of baseball dates from 18 months ago when his highness, Bowie Kuhn, canceled my three-player deal," Finley said. "I needed that money very badly at that time to keep my ship afloat — to stay in baseball."

"This is the bleakest day of my life. He (Kuhn) is probably celebrating."

Davis said he had received congratulations from American League President Lee MacPhail, who indicated the league would have no trouble with the A's sale. At least 10 of the 14 owners must approve the sale for it to go through. The league owners are expected to meet within two or three weeks to consider the matter.

Davis, a huge, bearlike man who is a personal friend and golfing partner of former President Gerald Ford and also a friend of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, admitted to reporters that "until two weeks ago I really didn't follow baseball."

But he is making plans to hire people who do. He said his first priority is to find a knowledgeable general manager to run the organization. Because of the lateness of the transaction, the man Davis picks will have missed the baseball trading sessions, held recently in Hawaii. But the new general manager would have to cope with that situation, Davis said.

Davis said Finley had promised to help the new organization. Davis, who held his news conference with Mayor William McNichols, plans to have the team play in Mile High Stadium, which is equipped to seat more than 55,000 for baseball games. The mayor indicated there would be no problem working out a lease agreement with the team.

Still to be decided is the fate of the Denver Bears, a member of the Triple-A American Association and its championship club for the last two years and for five of the last eight seasons.

Empire Sports, which owns the minor league club, must try to relocate the franchise somewhere in the American Association's territory. And some arrangement must be made with the Bears' parent club, the Montreal Expos.

Jim Saccomano, director of public relations for the Bears, said the league and the team owners must have some indemnity settlement with Davis and the A's as soon as the formal sale transaction is completed.

But late Wednesday, in Oakland, others were also awaiting the completion of the transaction.

Paul May, a lawyer representing the Oakland Coliseum, said he was awaiting details of the sale of the A's.

COMING IN — Skeeter Wilson floats in to the basket for two of his 15 points. He also pulled down 10 rebounds in a fine showing. Wilson is a senior from Birmingham.

FROM THE CORNER — Former Murray High star Glenn Jackson (14) jacks up one from the corner. In rebounding position is Tom Leffler (23) who looked very good in his playing time. Jackson, suffering from a bout with the flu, hit for three points.

All Athletes At Evansville Were In Tightly-Knitted Group

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Some wept uncontrollably. Others sat or stood in dazed silence. They were fans and friends, mourning the deaths of 14 young basketball players and the coach who had such faith in them.

More than 500 mourners filled the ultra-modern chapel on the campus of the University of Evansville.

"We are numb with horror, and we are in need of each other," said the university's president, Dr. Wallace Graves, who urged the mourners to try to live up to the dedication and reputation of the coaches and players.

"(Coach) Bobby Watson and the others were extremely devoted to this university, and we must carry on their goals," Graves said. "We should never forget this tragedy, but we must do our best in the days ahead to develop our potentialities, to love God and to carry on for them."

Twenty-nine people — including Watson, the players and seven others from the school — died Tuesday night in the crash of a chartered plane in rain and thick fog. The players, many of them 18-year-old freshmen, reportedly were in a happy, upbeat mood before leaving for the road trip that ended their lives.

"I was with them a few hours before they left for the plane," said Anthony Bess of Washington, D.C., a freshman football player at the university.

"I knew most of the players. We were together early in the afternoon. It was just like any other day, but the players seemed a little more confident of victory. It was like they thought their season was starting to improve."

Assistant coach Ernie Simpson said the team had lunch together and then went over last minute plans for Wednesday's game at Middle Tennessee State.

Simpson missed the trip because he was scouting a high school prospect in Owensboro, Ky., just across the Ohio River from Evansville.

"Bob and the rest of us on the coaching staff really felt the team was coming," said Simpson. "I was to drive down for the game. Now I just want to do whatever I can to help console parents or whatever."

"It's just hard to take," said junior Scott Barnhill of Boonville, Ind., another football player. "The football players and basketball players use the same dressing room. This is a close campus. You live in the dorms with them. You eat with them, and now it's hard for us to realize we will never see them again. That's why you're seeing all the reaction."

NEW YORK (AP) — After last season's bowl predictions, the question was what were we going to do for an encore? Certainly you remember that this corner called the correct winners of all 11 bowl games, exclusive of the Independence Bowl.

This time, we have an additional treat in store for you. Not only are we going to take a crack at all 13 bowl games — including the Independence — but we're going to do it twice — once on a won-lost basis and also against the point spread. The final week of the regular season, by the way, produced a 21-7-1 mark for a .714.

We'll run down the bowl games in order, but to give you a sneak preview and so you don't have to jump to the end to find out our Cotton Bowl pick, it's Notre Dame over Texas.

Independence Bowl — Louisiana Tech, 7-1-2, vs. Louisville, 7-3-1, no line: Maxie Lambright's Louisiana Tech Bulldogs are a perennial power in the Southland Conference and they have a potent aerial game with Keith Thibodeaux pitching and Rod Foppe catching. Vince Gibson's Louisville Cardinals can run the ball, but Tech has one of the nation's top defenses, too. Strangely enough, we're

Drug Still Banned

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Racing Commission has voted to maintain its ban against the use of Butazolidin, a medication used to reduce inflammation and soreness in horses.

The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association sought modification of the commission's rule banning use of "Bute," as the drug is commonly called.

The use of Bute is generally accepted at race tracks across the nation. Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs for years has resisted proposals for the use of the drug.

Herschel Friday, Oaklawn's attorney, said the race track objected to any medication rule change simply because "there is no compelling need to change."

But Joe Paterno keeps saying this could be his best team ever and Joe usually says what he means. Forget the formula. Penn State 28-14.

Gator Bowl — Pitt, 8-2-1, favored by 7 over Clemson, 8-2-1: Same reasoning as the Fiesta Bowl. Clemson is striving for big-time recognition, but Pitt has too many guns. Pitt 35-21.

Sun Bowl — Louisiana State, 7-3, favored by 3½ over Stanford, 8-3: A game of contrasts — LSU's Charles Alexander, one of the nation's top runners, against Stanford's Guy Benjamin, one of the top passers. LSU has been here before and the Tigers should know enough to keep their distance from friendly Juarez, Mexico. In a wild one...LSU 38-31.

Peach Bowl — Iowa State, 8-3, favored by 2½ over North Carolina State, 7-4: The Cyclones from the Big Eight Conference finally got a bowl invitation after being overlooked a year ago. It's up to them to make the most of it...Iowa State 26-13.

Bluebonnet Bowl — Southern California, 7-4, favored by 4 over Texas A&M, 7-3: In John McKay's last college game, USC embarrassed A&M 20-0 in the 1975 Liberty Bowl. McKay is gone — but the Aggies haven't forgotten...Texas A&M 28-21.

Rose Bowl — Michigan, 10-1, favored by 13½ over Washington, 7-4: Are you aware that Michigan hasn't won its final game since beating Ohio State 17-3 in 1966? Since then, the Wolverines have dropped three Rose Bowls, one Orange Bowl and are 0-4-1 when they closed out with regular-season wind ups. Time for a change...Michigan 35-14.

Sugar Bowl — Alabama, 10-1, favored by 1½ over Ohio State, 9-2: In combined victories, no coaching match-up in history — in a bowl or anywhere else — can match Alabama's Bear Bryant (272) vs. Ohio State's Woody Hayes (231). Even Woody has to play second fiddle to the Bear...Alabama 24-14.

Orange Bowl — Oklahoma, 10-1, favored by 13 over Arkansas, 10-1: Why the large spread between a pair of 10-1 teams? While Arkansas was struggling to beat Texas Tech 17-14 in its last game, Oklahoma was drubbing Nebraska 38-7, after bombing Colorado 52-14, after crushing Oklahoma State 61-28. Get the picture? It looks like...Oklahoma 27-17.

Cotton Bowl — Texas, 11-0, favored by 6½ over Notre Dame, 10-1: If Texas wins, the Longhorns are the national champs. That would be too cutand-dried. If Notre Dame wins, however, imagine all the fun when the final AP poll comes out. The controversy might last forever...Notre Dame 24-23.

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The stones weep and the elf recovers. With all their weapons gone, Claus says they must now use their wits against the Pigwidgen. They travel to a great wall.

CHAPTER TWELVE THE PYGMIES

CLAUS pushed on the tiny square door in the wall. The door wiggled but did not open.

"It's locked," said Claus. "It's such a little door!" scoffed Tweedleknecs. "We can knock it down!"

He beat on it and kicked on it and Claus pushed and they got a log and rammed on it but the door would not open.

Claus was discouraged. He put his hands in his pockets and hung his head. He thought of how he had sworn to break the curse the Pigwidgen had laid on all the children of the world and how he had come so far and now was defeated because he couldn't open a little door. Suddenly his hand closed around a small key in his pocket. He pulled it out. It was the brass key that had dropped from the black purse when the curse had fallen on the children. The single word "Pigwidgen" was printed on the key.

"How could I have forgotten!" cried Claus. He fitted the key into the little lock. Holding his breath, he turned the key. Slowly the door swung open.

The opening was so small Claus had to wiggle through on his stomach. Even the little elf had to crawl through on his hands and knees.

On the other side they huddled against the wall and gazed fearfully around. Here the wind did not blow so fiercely nor the cold bite so sharply. Snow blanketed hills, rolled down to a lake of ice. Near the lake stood a small castle.

From their snowdrift, an astonishing sight greeted them.

"Who afraid of a creature who lives in such a little castle?" scoffed Tweedleknecs.

At that moment there was the sound of drums and bugles. Furious voices shouted, "Catch them! Don't let them get away!"

Tweedleknecs dove into a snowdrift. Claus dove in beside him. When nothing happened, they timidly poked their heads out of the snow. They blinked in astonishment at the sight before them.

Bands of pygmies were fighting in front of the castle. They shouted and howled and cut off each other's heads. Even as the creatures lost their heads they rocked with laughter like school children playing tag.

At last it seemed not a pygmy was left alive. Claus and Tweedleknecs stepped out of the snowdrift. Hardly were they out when all the fallen pygmies rose to their feet, put their heads back on their necks and began to fight all over again.

Claus and Tweedleknecs jumped back in their snow hole. "It's a game!" blurted the elf in amazement. "They're doing it all for fun!"

A band of reindeer appeared over the hill. The pygmies left off fighting and chased the deer. Every time they reached a reindeer a curious thing happened: the reindeer rose in the air and FLEW away!

They swooped gracefully over the castle top, round and round, high and low, like sea gulls at the beach. Claus thought he had never seen so pretty a sight.

The pygmies got ropes and lassoed the deer and brought them down from the sky. They drew their swords, and shouted, "Horray! There'll be deer meat for supper!"

Before he knew what he was doing, Patrick Tweedleknecs shot out of the snow drift. He leaped in front of the rollicking pygmies and cried angrily, "Don't you dare!"

The astonished pygmies dropped the ropes and the reindeer raced away.

FAMILY ON ICE
FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — A Pavlacic on ice is not an appetizer. It's a way of life for the Pavlacic family.

Don Pavlacic, Sr., a retired skater and an electric company employee, has taught his children skating. Now they're piling up medals and trophies.

Don Jr., 18, skates in the senior men class, mainly in the 1- and 2-mile events. He has qualified for the national indoor meet each of the last four years.

Lisa, 15, competing in the junior girls' class, has won a state title in five of the last six years. She has been a Steinberg series champion in seven of her last eight tries.

Sharon, 13, has won six consecutive state titles and all but one local meet she has entered in the last four years. When she was skating in the midwest girls' class, she set a record — 44.3 seconds for the quarter-mile. Her career trophy count is 40.

David Pavlacic, 12, and Debbie, 10, compete in the midwest class — David with four consecutive state titles behind him and a second-place finish in overall national indoor standings two years ago, and Debbie with seven first place trophies, including a state title.

Some Election Reports Still Not Filed

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — John Craig, executive director of the Registry of Election Finance, said some candidates in the November general election may still get reprieves on their campaign spending reports.

Candidates had until midnight Tuesday to file reports on their campaign expenses with Craig's office. He said any that come in today's mail that were postmarked before that time will still be taken.

As it is, Craig said the number of delinquent candidates has dropped drastically from the May primary, when more than 600 were late. He said only 43 general election candidates had not filed spending reports as of Wednesday.

Craig said he will draw up a list of delinquent candidates after Thursday's mail arrives at his office and turn it over to the registry at its Dec. 21 meeting for "their reaction and direction."

The registry is expected to follow its action of last spring in turning the delinquents over to local authorities for prosecution.

"There is a big improvement," Craig said. "I think it is probably the result of the publicity and the action we took after the primary."

Craig said he received word of a recent conviction of a delinquent candidate in the primary who refused to file a report and was fined $100 on each of two counts.

Craig said reports from some of the 43 candidates could still come in Thursday and they would be removed from the list if their reports were postmarked before the midnight Tuesday deadline.

He noted he had not received the reports from four winning district judge candidates until Wednesday.

Of the 43 candidates whose reports are still out, only four were winners — one county judge, two county coroners and an urban-county councilman in Lexington.

Craig would not reveal the names of the candidates until the final list is drafted later this week.

University Of Evansville In State Of Mourning

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Sitting in Neu Chapel on the University of Evansville campus, a young woman put her arm around the shoulder of a friend, who was weeping uncontrollably.

Similar tearful scenes were commonplace during Wednesday's memorial service for victims of a plane crash that killed every member of the university's basketball team and its new coach, Bobby Watson.

More than 500 mourners jammed the ultra-modern chapel to capacity, scores stood in the aisles, while others remained outside in the damp courtyard. Despite the large crowd, there was almost no talking.

Instead, the sound of coughs and crying echoed off the chapel's walls.

It was, Dawn Ramsbey said later, an example of how the student body had been united by Tuesday night's tragedy, which resulted in 29 deaths altogether.

For Miss Ramsbey, a freshman from Plymouth, Ind., the most significant aspect of Wednesday's solemn memorial service "was just that everyone was so close."

Cathy Nelson, a junior from Cincinnati, said she was most affected by "the way they (the speakers) said the school should go on, not to let everyone get down, to keep on going."

Indeed, several speakers, notably Dr. Wallace Graves, university president, stressed the importance of trying to live up to the dedication and reputation of the coaches and players.

"Bobby Watson and the others were extremely devoted to this university, and we must carry on their goals," Graves said. "We should never forget this tragedy, but we must do our best in the days ahead to develop our potentialities, to love God and to carry on for them."

Similarly, Dr. Phil Ott, professor of religion, said, "Their brief, all too brief, accomplishments should inspire all of us. Their commitment, discipline and enthusiasm stand as a model for all of us."

The university, which has about 5,900 students, is related to the Methodist Church, so it was not surprising that prayer played an important role in the aftermath of the disaster.

"Lord, we ask you to comfort us in our sorrow," said Emerson Apts, university chaplain.

And Ott asked God to be patient with the anger and the questioning that normally follows such disasters.

Many students did not wait for the official memorial service to offer their own prayers. Some held impromptu prayer sessions in their dormitories Wednesday morning, and others went to the chapel in a spontaneous display of grief.

Let's Stay Well More 'Drowning' Victims May Be Saved

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Q: Mr. B. B. ask whether it is true that persons who have apparently drowned may occasionally be revived by first-aid even though the body may have been under water for 10 to 15 minutes.

A: According to studies at the University of Michigan, drowning victims may be brought back to life after being under water up to 30 minutes. Such victims are entitled to continued resuscitation efforts. They might save some of the estimated 8,000 lives which are lost annually from drownings in the United States.

Much depends on the temperature of the water in which a person has been submerged. The lower it is, the longer survival is likely. The tissue requirement for oxygen is less at lower temperatures. Also, the so-called diving reflex may reduce the outside and nonessential blood flow but cause an adequate supply to circulate to critical organs, such as the brain, for some time after submersion.

This diving reflex is useful to many animals. They are able to remain submerged for long periods. For example, air breathing seals can remain under water for as much as an hour. This reflex is present in humans and is perhaps more active in children. Such a reflex has been shown in humans by suddenly immersing their faces in cold water.

Cases of recovery without significant brain damage from lack of oxygen have been noted in a number of instances after the victims were under water for 15 minutes or more.

Admittedly, a person who has not been in cold water and who has not breathed or had a perceptible pulse for four or five minutes is a potential candidate for severe brain damage from lack of oxygen. Regardless, artificial respiration and external cardiac massage must be continued in such cases. Whether or not the victim is blue, cold, not breathing, without a pulse, or has fixed pupils, these resuscitation procedures should be extended for a much longer period in a drowning victim, even for several hours. Brain damage may be much slower because of the diving reflex and lower body temperature.

Such resuscitation efforts should be started at the site of drowning, continued in an ambulance if the person is being carried to a hospital, and sustained by manual or mechanical aids.

The finding by Martin Nemiroff and associates at the University of Michigan has proved that resuscitation may be possible, if continued over longer periods, in drowning victims whom we had formerly concluded were beyond help.

KSP Must Prove That Sex Not Criteria for Officer Selection

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky State Police must prove that sex discrimination does not exist in its officer selection process, or it will lose nearly $95,000 in federal funds for operation of its crime laboratories.

The U.S. Justice Department advised Gov. Julian Carroll last August that unless Kentucky state police comply with federal anti-discrimination statutes in hiring officers, the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration would suspend further payments to state police.

LEAA acting administrator James Gregg notified Carroll after receiving notice of a finding by the Kentucky Human Rights Commission that there has been a "pattern or practice of discrimination in the selection of patrol officers."

The commission ruled last July that two Lexington women were discriminated against because of their sex when they were refused admission to the State Police Academy. They failed to meet a 5-foot-6 minimum height requirement.

State police contend physical standards are necessary to insure the state troopers can carry out their duties.

The state's reply to the LEAA letter identifies three issues which state police Commissioner Ken Brandenburg said he thinks merit consideration by LEAA administrators:

—That the Human Rights Commission order is appealable, and that the matter has not been settled by the state courts. He contended that the federal action infringes on the duties and powers of the Kentucky court system.

—That the original statute dealing with affirmative action and equal employment opportunity in LEAA-funded operations required LEAA to make its own investigation of a complaint if it involved suspension of funds. The law was amended to allow LEAA to accept the finding of a body such as the Human Rights Commission.

However, Brandenburg contends that since the alleged acts of discrimination occurred in 1975, before the new language took effect, that LEAA should have to make its own investigation of the complaint.

—That the funding received by Kentucky state police under LEAA grants is used only for the operation of state police crime laboratories, staffed by civilians hired under the state merit system. Brandenburg contended that the suspension of funds is not valid because the LEAA-supported activity does not involve sworn officers.

Funding for the remainder of the Kentucky fiscal year through June 30 was suspended Nov. 15, Brandenburg said in a telephone interview.

Kentucky has 120 days from that date, or until mid-March, to request a federal administrative hearing to determine whether the grants should be terminated.

Brandenburg said he hopes the matter will be settled by then in the state courts.

A hearing in the suit filed against state police by the two women has been set for Jan. 23 before Franklin Circuit Court Judge Squire Williams.

If the Human Rights Commission order is reversed and the state police position upheld, then LEAA would restore the funds, Brandenburg said. However, if the courts uphold the finding that discrimination existed, Kentucky would lose the LEAA funds and would have to absorb the cost of operating the laboratories.

"We will continue operation of the labs," he said. "They are an essential part of our service function to our own personnel and to other law enforcement agencies in the state."

The laboratories at Covington, Ashland and London test samples of evidence, such as drugs, blood or firearms.

Brandenburg said the LEAA fund cut-off would have no continuing effect on the laboratory operation, since he has proposed that they be funded by the state over the next biennium.

Fulltime PSC Favored By Its Newest Member

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The newest member of the Kentucky Public Service Commission favors making it a fulltime job.

"I don't believe part-time commissioners can really have the time to devote to the job that they should, and that is required," John Stanley Hoffman said in an interview prior to his swearing in Wednesday.

Hoffman, a Henderson attorney and long-time friend of Gov. Julian Carroll, said it was too early to say if he would want the job if it were fulltime.

The part-time post currently pays $23,000 annually, with the PSC chairman earning $25,000.

A bill has been prefiled for the 1978 General Assembly to make the PSC commissioners fulltime.

The 41-year-old former state legislator, county judge and secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection said regulation of the state's utilities is "something I'm interested in," but joked about his qualifications.

"I'm not sure I have any," he said.

Hoffman said he was familiar with the operation of the PSC because of the working relationship of the commission and Natural Resources Department when he was secretary, a position he held for 14 months. The department held power plant site hearings for the PSC and turned other data over to the commission for evaluation, he said.

After resigning from the post, he was appointed by Carroll as chairman of the state Board of Tax Appeals in March, 1976.

Hoffman is resigning the tax board post to take the PSC appointment, but said he probably would continue to practice law.

Hoffman said he has never represented utilities in his law practice, and has never appeared before the PSC on behalf of a utility.

Legislation is also likely to be introduced during the next session of the General Assembly to require that commissioners be elected rather than appointed by the governor.

Hoffman said he doesn't think that's a good idea.

"I wouldn't prefer that," he said. "It's difficult to run in a statewide election."

Appointments are necessary "to get the caliber you need for that type of office," he said.

Hoffman fills a vacancy created by the expiration of the term of Earle Powell of Owensboro.

Carroll said he has known Hoffman "all my political life," and that he has served the state well in previous duties with government.

'Centennial' To Be Filmed In Kentucky

FRANKFORT — State Commerce Commissioner W. Terry McBrayer announced today that Kentucky has been selected as the filming site for "Centennial," a television special based on James Michener's best-selling novel. McBrayer, chairman of the Kentucky Film Commission, made the announcement at a commission meeting.

"Universal Studios will be filming three to four weeks in Kentucky starting Feb. 20," McBrayer said. "The areas chosen for filming are Augusta, Maysville, Boonesboro and Perryville."

McBrayer said Universal is producing the 12-hour television special for airing on NBC sometime next season. In a related announcement, McBrayer told the commission members that Universal's "Black Beauty" production left more than $1.5 million in central Kentucky, bringing the state's total income from motion picture production to more than $2.1 million for the first five months of the current fiscal year.

"Over two and one quarter million dollars in five months, coupled with the announcement of 'Centennial,' indicates to me that the film commission is living up to its potential to stimulate Kentucky's economy and will be a significant force in Kentucky for some time to come," McBrayer said.

The commission staff is working with producers of more than 12 films, trying to attract them to Kentucky for production next spring and summer. "Of these productions," McBrayer said, "we should be able to come up with five or six solid proposals for the next year."

The film commission is made up of 18 Kentucky residents and actors Lee Majors and Ned Beatty, former Kentuckians now living in California. The commission members serve as advisors and technical experts for attracting motion picture productions to the state.

Strengthened Social Security Measure To Cost $227 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for Christmas, Congress is giving the country a financially strengthened Social Security system. It's also delivering a bill for its present — $227 billion over the next decade alone, to be paid by 107 million taxpayers.

Some of the poorest workers in the country would face a tax increase of more than 16 percent during that period. Higher paid workers and their employers would pay as much as 24 percent more than under current law.

The Senate and House planned to routinely approve a compromise version of the bill today. That vote was to be followed by adjournment, although negotiators working on the president's energy program planned to remain in Washington for further sessions.

The way for the final vote was cleared Wednesday when Senate conferees dropped their insistence on a $250-per-student college tuition tax credit that had been attached to the bill.

Because the tax increase would be felt by 107 million persons, it's not a bill that vote-conscious congressmen are particularly fond of passing.

But most lawmakers see no other acceptable way to make sure the huge pension system is able to continue providing benefits for 33 million Americans.

Unless more money is paid into the system, experts say, the Social Security fund for the disabled will be exhausted by March 1979 and the old-age fund by 1983.

Higher benefits and inflation have increased payouts from the funds; high unemployment has cut tax collections.

The bill is not exactly what President Carter wanted. He preferred to make employers pay a greater share of payroll taxes and to use some income tax revenues to finance Social Security in hard times.

But he did not press those issues after Congress made clear its opposition. And Carter's secretary of health, education and welfare, Joseph A. Califano Jr., hailed the compromise bill as fulfilling a Carter campaign commitment to restore the integrity of the Social Security system.

There is more to the bill than the massive tax increase:

—By 1982, retired persons between 65 and 69 could earn $6,000 a year and still get a full pension. The current limit is $3,000 a year.

—The bill would eliminate half of the projected long-range deficit in Social Security by correcting a quirk in a 1972 law that gave some retirees double increases in benefits to compensate for increases in living costs.

—The measure stabilizes benefits for future retirees. An average worker retiring in the future could expect to draw a pension equal to about 43 percent of his last paycheck. For low-income workers, the pension would be about 60 percent; for high-income retirees, about 30 percent.

—The bill makes a start at ending some Social Security provisions that many consider to discriminate against women.

The Social Security bill would not mean new payroll tax increases in the 1978 election year beyond the one already required by law. Its first major tax increase would not be felt by most workers until after the 1980 presidential election.

Nevertheless, the increased tax bite on some of the 107 million persons who pay into Social Security would be staggering, especially at upper-income levels.

The $10,000-a-year worker who paid $565 in Social Security taxes this year will pay $605 in 1978 under terms of existing law.

When the already-scheduled increases are added to those required under the bill, this worker's total payroll tax from 1978 through 1987 would total $6,641. That is 16.2 percent more than under current law.

On the same basis, the tax on a $20,000 worker, who paid the maximum tax of $965 this year, will pay $1,071 in 1978 and total of $13,143 over the next decade. The increase above current law is 14.7 percent.

The high-income worker, who paid $965 this year and will pay $1,071 next year, could pay as much as $21,458 in Social Security taxes between 1978 and 1987. That's an increase of 243 percent.

In 1977, a worker paid into Social Security 5.85 percent of his first $16,500 of earnings, a maximum tax of $965, and the employer matched that figure.

Starting next Jan. 1, current law sets the tax at 6.05 percent of the first $17,700.

The rate would climb gradually to 7.65 percent by 1990. The wage subject to tax would rise each year with average wage levels, which would take it to about $55,000 in 1990.

Medicare Enrollment Period Is Approaching

The 1978 Medicare general enrollment period is January through March, giving those persons eligible, but who don't have this health insurance, an opportunity to gain this valuable protection, according to a local Social Security spokesman.

Those eligible to sign up for Medicare's medical insurance, which helps pay doctor bills and other covered services and supplies, include people who failed to sign up during their earlier opportunities and those who once had this insurance but who dropped it.

Also, people 65 and over who are not eligible for the hospital insurance part of Medicare can sign up to buy this protection from January through March, but only if they also sign up for medical insurance.

Protection for people who sign up for either or both parts of Medicare will begin July 1, 1978, the spokesman said.

The basic premium for medical insurance through June, 1978, is $7.70 a month, the spokesman noted. The hospital insurance premium is $54 a month through June, 1978. The basic monthly premiums for medical insurance and hospital insurance which will be effective starting July, 1978, will be announced later this year.

A provision of the law will probably make the medical insurance premium even higher for those who sign up for it during the general enrollment period, the spokesman continued. The basic premium is increased by 10 percent for each 12 months a person could have had this protection but did not elect to take it.

The telephone number for the Paducah Social Security Office is 443-7506; the number for the Mayfield Social Security Office is 247-8095.

James Hutton, a Scottish geologist, proposed the law of superposition in 1785. This fundamental principle used to determine the relative ages of rocks states that whenever unconformable layers of rocks are exposed, the bottom-most was deposited first and hence is the oldest, with each succeeding layer deemed progressively younger.

FBI Agent Engineers Left Wing Arrest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For four years, a young FBI agent lived in poverty and developed a convincing dialogue of Marxist jargon in an effort to enter the clandestine world of the political underground.

Last month, says undercover agent Richard Giannotti, the word came down from radical cohorts in the Prairie Fire Organizing Committee to help bomb the office of a conservative California legislator.

Instead, he and agent William Reagan — considered trusted members of a small "combat team" that called itself the Revolutionary Action Squad — ditched their secret lives to help engineer the group's arrest.

Giannotti, officials say, was in the underground for seven years.

It has the earmarks of another dramatic FBI success story, but bureau officials concede privately that the big fish got away.

Although one alleged radical leader was arrested, 62-year-old Clayton Van Lydegraf, the best known remain at large — including Bernardine Dohrn, Jeffrey Jones, William Ayres, Cathy Wilkerson and Kathy Boudin — all of them with the radical Weather Underground, officials say.

"If we knew where they were, we'd pick them up tonight," says one FBI official.

Besides Van Lydegraf, others arrested were Judith Bissell, who had been sought for a 1969 Seattle bombing, Leslie Mullins, Curtis Marc Perry and Michael Thomas Justesen. All were active in

The five were to be arraigned in Superior Court today on charges stemming from an alleged plot to bomb the office of state Sen. John Briggs, an outspoken opponent of homosexual rights.

Van Lydegraf, according to the FBI, is a leader of the Prairie Fire unit, an above ground group that in the past has been a support group associated with the super-secret Weather Underground.

The group takes its name from a writing by Mao Tse-tung, who encouraged revolutionary activity by noting that a single spark can start a prairie fire.

The Prairie Fire committee directed the five suspects' activities, according to FBI documents filed in connection with last month's arrests. The bureau documents say the committee leadership includes five women and Van Lydegraf, who resides in San Francisco.

Agent Giannotti lived with Van Lydegraf for more than a year, according to FBI files, and gained the radical patriarch's confidence. But he never learned the whereabouts of the better known radical leaders, most of whom have been fugitives since 1970.

Elmer Lindberg, special agent in charge of the FBI's criminal section in Los Angeles, says, "The purpose of the agent's penetration was to find underground people."

Reagan and Giannotti amassed "a wealth of knowledge about how the underground operates," according to Lindberg. He judged the results of the lengthy infiltration "worthwhile," but said the question as to whether the agents should blow their cover to arrest a small group of five "was a difficult decision."

Rate Up Slightly

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's unemployment rate crept slightly upward in November, reaching 4.5 percent, according to figures released Dec. 13 by the Department for Human Resources. The November rate is two-tenths of a percent higher than the October rate of 4.3 percent.

The national rate for the same period was 6.4 percent. Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the state said, "The current rise in unemployment was due to job layoffs throughout the state, many of them seasonal layoffs which occur during the fourth quarter of each year. Compared to November of 1976 when the unemployment rate was 5.4 percent, there are 2,800 more unemployed but total employment is up by 62,800 people."

Reporter Gets 'Some Story'

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Seeking a first-hand look at illegal aliens, reporter Louie Gonzalez donned grubby work clothes and traveled the underground railroad from deep Mexico to the California border. He got some story.

In four days, the 27-year-old journalist says he experienced bigotry, felt a knife's cutting blade and stared into the twin barrels of a bandit's shotgun.

He says some of the autumn odyssey's most terrifying moments still haunt him. In a recurring dream, a robber who held a shotgun to Gonzalez's head — but did not fire — instead pulled the trigger. "It's messed up my mind," Gonzalez said Tuesday in an interview. "I have recurring nightmares, the whole shot."

He said his journey has also greatly altered his perception of the flight and plight of illegal aliens from Mexico.

"They have been characterized as a class of people spreading like a cancer across the country, depleting the resources of America," Gonzalez wrote at the beginning of his six-part series published recently in the Oakland Tribune.

"They are known by many names — wets, wetbacks, mojados, illegals, undocumented workers and illegal aliens. But no matter what you call them, they are victims of hardship, brutality, exploitation and violence, as they expend every ounce of their energy in reaching for something better."

Gonzalez's original plan was to dump all identification papers, fly to Guadalajara, take a rattling 54-hour bus ride to Tijuana, join up with other illegals, cross into California and eventually sneak north to Oakland.

But he never made his illegal crossing, stopping instead at a secluded mountain shack a short walk from a secret border entry point. The next day he crossed at a legal U.S. immigration checkpoint near San Ysidro. "I had seen more than enough," Gonzalez

Kentucky Evaluates New Prescription Drug Law

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Two-thirds of a group of Kentuckians questioned in a recent survey were unaware of a state law designed to give consumers a price break when having a doctor's prescription filled.

But state health officials are unsure of the significance of the findings because Kentucky's 1972 Generic Drug Law is aimed at benefiting all consumers regardless of whether they are aware of the law or understand it.

Al Austin, executive assistant in the state Bureau for Health Services, discussed the drug survey in an interview Wednesday.

The random telephone poll of over 400 residents in all 120 counties was directed by Bill Mackey, a health statistician in the bureau.

The survey was designed "to get some feel about the awareness of the law, how much it is being used and what benefit it is affording the public," Austin said.

Other states will be watching Kentucky's evaluation of its law because it has been used as a model, Austin said. "Kentucky is one of the leaders, if not the leader," in developing a drug formulary, Austin said.

Under Kentucky's law, the state Drug Formulary Council maintains a list of over 3,000 therapeutic equivalents of about 50 drugs.

Unless a physician specifies "no substitute" on the prescription, pharmacists are required to fill the prescription with the lowest-priced therapeutic equivalent drug.

Pharmacists also are required to post a sign explaining the Generic Drug Law.

However, of the 244 persons who agreed to participate in the telephone survey, only about 20 per cent said they had seen the sign.

Just under eight per cent of those surveyed said they had discussed the Generic Drug Law with their doctor or pharmacist, Austin said, though he cautioned that is not necessarily an indication they benefited from the law.

Of those surveyed, 77, or 31.5 per cent, said they were aware of the Generic Drug Law. The survey results "indicate perhaps a need for consumer awareness," Austin said. How best to go about that will be decided by the Drug Formulary Council and the Bureau for Health Services, he added.

"The law was written with the idea that the council would draw up a list of generic equivalents and distribute that to pharmacists," Austin said.

"There were no provisions for consumer education. The law was designed primarily for retired persons on fixed incomes who do not have much money for medication and require maintenance drugs (such as for heart disease).

"What we need now is to look at how we can upgrade awareness of the law so that more people benefit from it," Austin said.

Austin said officials were not surprised by the survey results.

"It's just about what I thought it would be," he said, adding there is a five percent margin of error in the findings.

Sermon Series Will Be, Bible College

The series of sermons on the "Trail of Blood," prepared first by Dr. J. M. Carroll, and augmented by years of research, will be given by the Baptist author, Dr. A. A. Davis, at Mid-Continent Baptist Bible College, Mayfield, for Founders' Day, January 9-11, 1978.

There will be two sessions each day, at 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., and all sessions are open to the interested public, a spokesman said.

Your Microwave Headquarters

Dear Virginia,
Your letter of Thursday last in which you affirmed your faith in me and in my ability to bring joy on Christmas morning filled this old Santa's heart with joy! Ho! Ho! Ho!
I took your advice and looked in on activities and bargains at:

The Blackford House

You were right, Virginia, that is indeed an inflation stopping place to shop.

After seeing for myself I feel that I should urge you to visit there again, because in addition to the items that you called to my attention, I found the following that would be excellent for Christmas gifts: student's shirts trimmed in corduroy in sizes from 14 to 22, regularly priced at $14.00 on sale for $7.00. Boys Rugby Fleece lined shirts in sizes from 6 to 16, priced at only $6.00. Men's Cowhide Leather Belts in all sizes for $4.99. Men's Billfolds, guaranteed for 2 years, for $6.50. Men's Socks at the low price of 98¢. Early American Stoneware by Chatham, guaranteed dishwasher safe, in a 45-piece set for $189.00. Currier & Ives Ironstone 45-Piece set at $44.00.

And, Virginia, you were also right concerning the smiling, friendly helpers who gift wrap free. And the oranges are delicious! I hope the director and each member of the Murray High School Band enjoys the trip to the Orange Bowl as much as I enjoyed the oranges! Ho! Ho! Ho!
